WAR SCARE CAUSED OIL LEASE, DOHENY SAYS

2 CANDIDATES IN FIELD FOR SENATE SEAT

BASE NEEDED IN HAWAII TO PROTECT U. S.

Magnate Discloses Story Against Advice of His

FEARED GREAT INVASION

Financier Says Papers Disappeared After Search of Files

By Associated Press
New York.—The New York Times Wednesday publishes a copyright interview in which Edward L. Doheny, financier, discloses what he believes has been regarded hitherto as a great military secret.

Speaking in Los Angeles to a staff reporter against the advice of counsel, the Times says, Mr. Doheny stated that there never would have been an Elk Hills lease nor would his company have undertaken the construction of the Pearl Harbor naval base had not Rear Admiral John K. Robinson, chief of the naval bureau of engineering in Washington, convinced him that a great war in the Pacific threatened the United States.

Mr. Doheny will go to trial in Washington in October on a charge of criminal conspiracy with Albert E.
Hall, former secretary of the interior,
in connection with the Elk Hills oil lease, which the government in the Los Angeles federal court has succeeded in invalidating.

EVIDENCE SUPPRESSED.
The story of naval officers of war in the Pacific, Mr. Doheny says, was continued in a deposition by Admiral Robinson put in evidence in the trial of the suits to an-null the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases, but the portion relating to the military secret was stricken out.

"Robinson called to my mind the horror of the invasion of Belgium," Mr. Doheny said. "With a force I shall never forget, he asked me to guarantee the results of even a temporary oriental invasion of the Pacific coast of the United States. He went on how much worse, how much more horrible, how much more to be feared was an oriental invasion than the worst horrors of the German invasion."

Mr. Doheny started me with information regarding orders which had been given to foreign war vessels and to merchant ships in the Pacific
for their mobilization on incredibly short notice.

Mr. Doheny said that everyone who has been informed of this situation has been warned of its highly confidential and secret character before it came to the public conference then held at Washington in 1917.

SUGGESTED BY DENBY.
Mr. Doheny further discloses, the Times says, that the famous executive order of President Harding which gave to the interior department, under Mr. Fall, administrative powers involving the naval oil reserves, was suggested, not by Mr. Fall, but by the then secretary of the navy, Denby, that the war fears of naval officers had been communicated to Secretary Denby who brought up the matter of joint control in a cabinet meeting.

In the interview, Mr. Doheny stated that telegrams had disappeared mysteriously from the files of the interior department after the lease had been ransacked by persons in the employ of the senate investigating committee. He said these telegrams disclosed that Fall had no authority in making contracts with the Doheny interests, but that these contracts were supervised by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Finney, Secretary Doheny and Admiral Robinson.
Mr. Doheny read the telegrams during the seven-hour interview, he said they had been unearthed by his counsel in the office of the controller general attached to bills for the telegraph tolls.

Washington, D. C.—Rear Admiral
Robinson declined Wednesday to discuss the New York Times interview with Edward L. Doheny beyond stating that he already had described his conference with Doheny in the courts.
Whereas the interview said the conference was in New York, Admiral Robinson said it was his recollection it was at the Navy department in Washington.

BUILDINGS ON ROCK BOTTOMS SAFEST IN QUAKE, SURVEY SHOWS

Santa Barbara, Calif.—A survey of the ruins of Monday's earthquake in Santa Barbara as completed by City Engineer George W. Morrison indicates that buildings constructed on solid rock foundations fared better in tremors than house built on "filled in" land, the official declared. Along Santa Barbara's waterfront region the land has been filled in for years. Buildings in the vicinity obviously suffered more than the structures on the higher sites of the city which have firm rock foundations, Morrison said.

Examples, he explained, were the California hotel, completed
two weeks ago and being razed
Wednesday; the southern Pacific railroad's roundhouse and the pavement along the waterfront.
The roundhouse was shaken
throughout and the roof collapsed.

M'CLINTOCK WILL HEARING PUT OFF

Shepherd Granted Continuance to Recoup from Murder Trial

By Associated Press
Chicago.—Hearing on the will of Bliss McGintie was continued to 11 o'clock Friday by Judge Henry M.
Horne Wednesday on motion of Robert H. Stoll, counsel for William Shepherd, beneficiary. Mr. Stoll argued that his client had just been acquitted of the charge of murdering McClintock, and was unprepared for the hearing.

Orville Taylor, counsel for Iowa relatives of the deceased, opposed an continuance. Judge Horne in granting the continuance found fault with Shepherd's counsel for not giving him notice that continuance was desired. He added that he realized, however, that "the circumstances are unusual."

Friday Mr. Stoll will produce, he has indicated, the witnesses who signed the will. Eva Nelson and Marie Gartner, former servants in the McClintock household. He will
Mr. Shepherd, who drew the will,
would not appear.

If the will is admitted to probate,
counsel for the Iowa kin and for Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancée, are expected to file a bill in equity
in the circuit court contesting the will on the grounds of undue influence.

SEE LONG CHASE FOR "LA SALLE-ST WOLF"

By Associated Press
San Diego, Calif.—Federal officers
early Wednesday indicated their belief that the newest search for John H. Worthington, known as the "Wolf of LaSalle Street," who faces
a term in Atlanta federal prison, will be a long one. Reports gathered at Ensenada, Lower California, to which Worthington went several days ago,
led those seeking him to believe that he had started on an ocean trip to Europe, where he is supposed to have sufficient funds in banks to help him go ahead of pursuers for some time.

It is said that when American federal officers found him there he exclaimed:
"You thought I was running away,
didn't you? Well, I simply came here to take the baths."

Santa Barbara Begins To Rise Out Of Quake Ruins

By Associated Press
Santa Barbara, Calif.—A bright
dawn spread over Santa Barbara,
earthquake stricken city of the Pacific
as her thousands of sons and daughters rose to face serious problems of reconstruction which confront them
in returning their city to what was formerly described as the millionaires'
playground of the Pacific coast.

Ten people have lost their lives in the earthquake, described as the heaviest to visit the Pacific coast.
Five major shocks have been recorded since the first tremor on Monday,
but throughout the time there have been nearly a score of slight, almost imperceptible shocks.

No exact estimates of the loss have been announced, but it has been de-

RANSOM PLOT

Here are the principals in a strange kidnaping plot revealed at San Francisco. Bliss Baker (above), young University of California student, planned to kidnap Mrs. D. C. Jackling (below), and hold her for a $50,000 ransom. The police discovered the plot before it could be brought into execution. Mrs. Jackling is the wife of a wealthy copper magnate.

RUMOR FRANCE PLANS TO OPEN DEBT PARLEY

Special to Post-Crescent
Paris.—It is understood that the French government is soon to inform the United States of its desire to open negotiations in Washington for settlement of the French debt.

Instructions to this effect may be sent by Foreign Minister Briand shortly to M. Daeschner, the French Ambassador in Washington.

Anxious consideration is being given at the foreign office as to what can specifically be proposed or accepted.

The advisers to the foreign minister do not appear to have reached their conclusions as yet but it is recognized that both the American and British debts must be arranged
as part of the French government's program to stabilize the country's finances this autumn.

UPHAM'S ESTATE PAYS $11,782 HERITAGE TAX

By Associated Press
Madison.—Administrators of the estate of former Governor William Upham Wednesday paid a state inheritance tax of $11,782.13 to Herbert
G. Rinder, county treasurer. Former Governor Upham was a resident of Palma Beach, Fla., when he died last year. The tax was paid on holdings in Wisconsin, valued at $247,446.96.

Coolidge Is Satisfied With Andrew's Dry Plan

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1925 by the Post Pub. Co.
Swampscott, Mass.—Having a president of the United States and his retinue around the house is not soothing to the nerves of a sick man and that's why Calvin Coolidge decided to come back here and let his aged father convalesce in the peace and quiet of his Plymouth farmhouse.
Colonel Coolidge is considered out of danger now and the president was assured by the physicians that they saw no reason for him to remain in Plymouth as he can get back there again in a few hours from the summer capital if an emergency should arise.

The president's work is here, for he has a lot of accumulated mail and documents to study. His vacation is not to be a complete relaxation in any sense. There are problems galore on which the president's advice and guidance are sought. And there are some from which he discreetly steers away.

MIGHT CAUSE WORRY.
Prohibition, for example, could cause the president a good deal of worry if he would let it. The organization of the prohibition enforcement

England, U. S. Threatened By Mining Strike

By Associated Press
New York.—Serious labor crises threaten the coal mining industries of both the United States and Great Britain.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has publicly denounced the "infamous conspiracy" in the bituminous fields to break the Miners' union, declaring that unless the existing Jacksonville agreement is carried out, a national shutdown of soft coal mines may be ordered.

In England a big strike threatens following formal notification by the mine owners of their intention to terminate the present agreement—a move which Secretary Cook of the Miners' Federation characterizes as a "declaration of war."

Mr. Lewis' statement, made in an address Tuesday before the Anthracite Tri-District scale convention at Cranton was featured by an attack on John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Charles H.
Schwab and Secretary of the Treasury
Andrew W. Mellon.

"I am calling the attention of the Government of the United States and of the American people today to this fact," he added. "I have cited the instances and I have named the men responsible for this' action."

U. S. FLEET OFF ON LONG CRUISE

Friendship Voyage in South Seas Will Last Three Months

Honolulu.—Nearly every port of prominence in Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania, as well as all the American South Sea possessions, except Guam, will get glimpses of some portion of the detachment of 55 United States Naval vessels which left here Wednesday for a "friendship" cruise of three months.

The Isles of Tahiti, Tai-O-Hae, Nukuhiva, Marquesas and Calapagos
also will be visited by certain craft.
The trip as a whole will constitute the longest and most extensive maneuvers ever carried out by the American fleet. The journey to Australia is the largest peacetime steaming voyage to be made by the United States.

The armada will proceed as a unit
from Honolulu to latitude 38 degrees, 10 minutes, approximately a day's sailing from Australia. Here the fleet will split. One detachment, headed by the Seattle, will proceed to Melbourne, arriving there July 25.
The other detachment will go to Sydney, which it is scheduled to reach July 28.

JAIL SLAYER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE WITH FLAMES

By Associated Press
Chicago.—Walter Krauser, held as the slayer of a policeman three years ago and who fatally stabbed Bernard Grant, his accomplice, in the county jail recently, failed Tuesday in an attempt to commit suicide by setting fire to his bed and clothing.

He was badly burned before guards flooded his cell and extinguished the flames. In the jail hospital he denied any suicidal intent and said enemies
in the jail had started the fire.

"They're trying to kill me because I killed Grant," he told officials.
Earlier in the day a knife was found in his cell. Warden Wesley Westbrook expressed the opinion that Krauser was insane but Sheriff Peter Hoffman after an interview with Krauser said he was feigning.

CAMPBELL IS HELD ON NEW FRAUD CHARGE

Spokane, Wash.—Gordon Campbell, already under sentence of 2 1/2 years
in prison and a fine of $1,000 after a Montana jury convicted him of using the mails to defraud in connection with Kevin Sunburst, oil field promotion again has run afoul of federal authorities. A special grand jury here Tuesday indicted him on charges of conspiracy for obtaining money
and property by means of false and fraudulent pretense, and using the United States mails to defraud.

The affairs of Senator Burton K.
Wheeler of Montana, whose relations with Campbell brought him under the charge of federal grand juries in Montana and the District of Columbia,
were not before the grand jury here.

RAILWAY MAN KILLED, ANOTHER FOUND DEAD

Superior.—B. W. Meyers of Kelly
Lake, Minn., was instantly killed in a railroad accident here Tuesday afternoon and Emil Nevala was found dead
in his room a victim of a heart attack.
Meyers, a brakeman employed by the Great Northern Railroad Co., fell from an engine pilot, as his train was entering the Allouez yards here. His body was horribly mangled. Nevala died by roommates.

C. AND N. W. SEEKS TO ABANDON SHORT LINE

Washington, D. C.—The Chicago and Northwestern railroad asked the Interstate Commerce commission to permit abandonment of 16 miles of a narrow gauge railroad running from Fennimore to Woodman. In 1923, the railroad petition said, the cost of operating the line was more than five times the total receipts from it.

TOLLGATE KEEPER DEMANDS 15 CENTS FROM CAL COOLIDGE

Swampscott, Mass.—Again at the summer White House here, President Coolidge Wednesday resumed the vacation routine, interrupted by his hurried departure for the bedside of his father in Plymouth, Vt.

Considerable business was laid before him by Senator Sanders,
who remained on duty at the executive office in Lynn during his absence.

It is probable that the president will accept any invitation to leave the seclusion of White Court until it has been established even more definitely that his aged father is in no danger of a re-lapse. On his 200-mile cross country trip, the president encountered
all the inconveniences of an ordinary tourist. He lost his way half a dozen times and made frequent stops to get road directions, one of the president's indiscretions was held up at a toll bridge near Charlestown, N. H., by a stern woman gate tender who demanded 15 cents. It was supplied by a secret service man.

WOMAN ELECTED TO U. S. CONGRESS

New England Elects First Congresswoman from Fifth District

By Associated Press
Lowell, Mass.—New England has elected its first congresswoman. Mrs.
Edith Rogers, Republican, by a vote of more than 2 1/2 to 1, was swept into office Tuesday, receiving 23,614 votes in the special fifth congressional district election, to 9,251
for her Democratic opponent, former governor and former representative Eugene N. Foss of Boston, once a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president.

Mrs. Rogers succeeds her husband,
John Jacob Rogers, who died last March after making a distinguished record. She received a larger proportion of the total vote than he did last November.

Mrs. Rogers was born in Saco, Me., 40 years ago. She was educated by a governess, attended a private school
in this city and completed her education in Paris and Europe. She married John Jacob Rogers in 1897, and when he became a congressman threw herself into the life of Washington as his helper.

It was Mrs. Rogers' service in the war that endeared her to her husband's constituency and led indirectly, it is believed, to her election Tuesday.

Mrs. Rogers is the sixth woman to be elected to congress.

ITALIAN DEBT CONCLAVE DELAYED FOR ONE MONTH

Washington, D. C.—Discussions
here of a plan for funding Italy's war debt to the United States will be delayed at least one month while Mario Alberti, technical expert of the Italian debt mission, returns to Rome for additional data on Italy's capacity to pay. He will leave Washington immediately. It was announced after two conferences Tuesday
with the American Debt commission, and the negotiations will be resumed
after Aug. 1.

While members of the American commission had hoped the negotiations would proceed without interruption, they are not anxious because of the delay.

Italy is regarded now as committed to a funding policy and it is thought that this might encourage Belgium, France, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia to give headway to similar negotiation.

Signor Alberti's return to Rome will give him his first opportunity to discuss fully the debt situation with Premier Mussolini.

HAYNES TO ENTER RACE AS GOVERNOR IN OHIO

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—Roy A. Haynes
may soon close four eventful years
as prohibition commissioner, to contest for the governorship of Ohio.
The commissioner is not yet ready to make any formal announcement. A conference of his supporters will be held here soon to consider the move.

Mr. Haynes would seek the Republican nomination for the office now held by Governor A. V. Donahy, Democrat, in his second term.

With his plans still indefinite, Commissioner Haynes expects to hold his office until Aug. 1, at least, when new procedure in prohibition enforcement ordered by Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury becomes effective.

Scopes Prosecutor Denies Publicity Is His Object

By Associated Press
Dayton, Tenn.—The Town of Dayton was agog Wednesday over a published charge of "publicity seeking"
in connection with the trial of John T. Scopes, teacher, to test the Tennessee anti-evolution law.

Dr. George W. Rappleyea, original prosecutor of Scopes, declared to the Associated Press that a published report which said that he has inaugurated the evolution charges for publicity purposes was without foundation of truth.

The report which is characterized as erroneous by Dr. Rappleyea was not carried by the Associated Press.
Expected action Wednesday by the American Federation of Teachers convened in Chicago, upon a resolution denouncing the Tennessee evolution law was a matter of concern

Wilcox First to Announce In- tention to Enter Sena- torial Race

ANNOUNCE PLATFORMS
Former Governor McGovern
Declares He Favors Liquor
Law Enforcement

East Claire.—With the issuance of a statement that he would be candidate for the senatorial seat left vacant by the death of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette, Roy E. Wilcox of Eau Claire, president of the Wisconsin Bar association, Wednesday stood as the first person to make a definite announcement that he would contend for the seat since the death of Mr. La Follette.

A state senator for two regular and three special sessions, Mr. Wilcox who only recently was elected to head the bar association of this state, announces his appeal for support will be based on his previous record. "I shall not be a candidate of any group or faction, but shall welcome the support of all those who have in the past supported the things I have stood for and shall wish to support them."
The statement said.

"NEW DEAL DEMAND"
"A new deal in Wisconsin politics is demanded, which shall be in hearty accord with President Coolidge's inaugural program for reduced taxation and efficient constitutional government. We are fortunate to have such a leader."
Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, widow of the late senator, Zenas Gale, author of Forgive, Fred Zimmerman, secretary of Milwaukee, and Francis McGovern, former governor, have been mentioned as candidates for the senatorship. None has thus far announced intentions to run.

Opposing Governor John J. Blaine,
Mr. Wilcox was a candidate for governor of the solid Republican plank in both 1919 and 1920, but was defeated by the governor who ran on a Progressive platform.

NGOVERN GETS IN

Milwaukee.—Francis E. McGovern,
former governor of Wisconsin, Wednesday formally announced his candidate for the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the death of Robert M. La Follette.

Among other policies which he recites as his platform, Mr. McGovern declares himself in favor of the campaign to cut down national expense,
in favor of the deep waterway from the "Great Lakes to the Atlantic," opposed to the entry of the United States into the league of nations; in favor of the payment of foreign debts to the United States; and "on the question of prohibition I shall stand for an honest and impartial enforcement of existing laws, leaving to the people the full right to change these laws from time to time as they may see fit."

TUSCANIA BRINGS IN COLLISION VICTIMS

By Associated Press
New York.—Bringing nine survivors of the Gloucester, Mass., fishing schooner Rex, which was sunk off Halifax Sunday with a loss of 15 of her crew when she was rammed by the Anchor line steamer Tuscania,
the Tuscania docked Wednesday a day
behind her schedule chiefly owing to delay involved in the accident. The Tuscania also brought the body of Capt.
Thomas Downie, the Rex's skipper,
who died soon after being picked up.

15 PUPILS VICTIMS OF DNIESTER RIVER FLOOD

Warsaw.—Devastating floods have followed the worst rainy spell experienced for a generation in Galicia and Silesia. The Vistula river and all the mountain streams are out of their banks. The city of Cracow is in danger.

Many of the districts look like vast lakes, from which emerge tiny villages situated on higher ground.
Fifteen children crossing a bridge over the Dniester river near Marjampol on a school excursion were washed away, and all perished.

13 WITNESSES SUMMONED AT BAKER INQUEST

Shotgun Victim and Goes to Scene of Her Death

Thirteen witnesses were subpoenaed for the coroner's inquest which was to be held Wednesday afternoon at Oshkosh to determine the facts concerning the tragic death of Mrs. Gertrude Hess Baker, of Berlin, who was killed by the discharge of a shotgun while camping with her husband, Victor H. Baker, chiropractor, near Fremont Saturday evening. Charles Hess, father of Mrs. Baker; John W. Wieck, Berlin undertaker; V. H. Baker, husband of the deceased, who claims the shooting was accidental; George Corrivau and August Montle, Berlin insurance men; Dr. Charles Rehling, Fremont physician, and Irving Bauer, Fremont undertaker, both of whom were called to the scene of the shooting, and five town of Wolf River farmers near or on whose farms the shooting took place. The Wolf River men are Frank Neuschaefer, Walter Neuschaefer, John Liebe, Grant McClellan and William Much.

JURY VISITS SCENE
The coroner's jury of six men, Dr. K. Allen, district attorney, Sheriff Steve Gore and N. F. Christensen, corner, all of Oshkosh, drove to Berlin Monday and also to the scene of the shooting.

At Berlin, the jurors viewed the body of Mrs. Baker at the Hess home and were sworn by Justice Christensen.

They inspected the Essex automobile in which the Bakers had driven to Bonduel, Wis., and in which Baker was sitting when the fatal shot was fired. After the Berlin men had been subpoenaed, the jurors drove to the spot on the river road near Fremont, where Mrs. Baker met her death.

GUN IS SEIZED
There the exact location of the automobile and the spot where Mrs. Baker's body had lain, were shown to the jurors who gave the premises a thorough inspection. The Remington shotgun, a charge from which killed Mrs. Baker, was placed in the custody of the sheriff.

According to the statements made by Baker, he was sitting on the front seat of the automobile when the shooting occurred. According to his statement, he was unloading the gun when it was accidentally discharged. Those who viewed the premises stated that Mrs. Baker was but a few feet away, standing near a tree, where she was about to put down a suitcase. Blood and flesh on the tree five or six feet from the ground indicated where the shot had lodged.

O. P. Schlafer has returned from national convention of hardware dealers which he attended the week which was in session all last week. Mr. Schlafer said the convention was the best managed conference he had ever attended and that a great deal of business was transacted. He said there was very little social entertainment on the program as the gathering was strictly a business affair. There were between three and four hundred hardware dealers in attendance from all parts of the country. Only 11 went from Wisconsin. Mr. Schlafer said that the weather was very much warmer in Philadelphia than it has been in Appleton.

DRIVER, DRUNK HAS CHOICE OF JAIL OR FINE

Joseph Wagner Nabbed by Police When His Driving Is Unsteady

When Joseph W. Wagner, 943 W. Wennebago-st., was driving an automobile Tuesday evening he found the work difficult because he was trying to handle two loads, the one on the car and the other on himself. A police officer noticed Wagner's predicament and promptly placed him under arrest on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The charge was accurate in its terminology, for the most that could be said for the locomotion was that it was an attempt at driving, it is said.

Wagner was taken into municipal court Wednesday morning where Judge Fred V. Heinemann after hearing complaint against him ordered him to pay a fine of $15 plus $4.20 in costs or else take an imprisonment of 10 days at the workhouse. It was Wagner's intention to pay the fine before the days was over.

Action was taken to provide memberships in the Butte-des-Morts Golf club for children whose parents are members of the club at a meeting of the club directors at the Conway hotel Tuesday evening. The meeting was preceded by a dinner. The directors also voted to establish a rate for guest fees for periods of two weeks and one month. These rates will be posted at the club. It was also decided to cancel the July 4 program previously arranged and the course will be open for play as usual next Saturday.

Miss Blanche Meyer and Bernard and Miss Petronella Mulvaney of Marion, spent Tuesday here with friends.

Mayor Leads Discussion at Rotary Meeting, Defending Aldermanic Plan

Five speakers took part in the city government forum of Appleton Rotary club following the noon luncheon Tuesday at Conway hotel. This gathering was a sequel to the one a week ago when C. M. Osborn, city manager of Kenosha, made an address concerning the managerial form of government.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., led the discussion, presenting the advantages of the aldermanic form of government. The commission council and managerial forms also were described and supported. In talks by Joseph Koffend, Jr., Louis Marshall, Henry W. Tuttrup and Hugh G. Corbett. Members of the club then took part in an open discussion. Arguments were found for and against each form of municipal rule that was mentioned and no attempt was made to decide which was the best of the three. Thomas W. Orblson presided at the session.

TOONEN VISITS REVIEW BOARD AT HORTONIA

Leo J. Toonen, assessor of incomes and supervisor of assessments for Outagamie and Waupaca cos., attended a meeting Tuesday of the board of review of the town of Horton. Similar meetings were held on Monday all over the county for the purpose of reviewing the work of the assessors and hearing complaints on assessments. Some of the boards adjourned their meetings to future dates.

Mrs. Perry Brown, 219 W. Washington-st. received word Tuesday morning that her brother, Joseph Kozina, Mrs. Joseph Kozina, and their daughter Evelyn, all of whom had been visiting at the Brown home two weeks ago, had been killed in an auto accident Monday in western Nebraska. The Kozinas were driving to their home in Boulder, Col., when the tragedy occurred. Another daughter, Jean, was seriously injured. Details of the accident have not been received, but it is thought that the car was struck by a train. The accident happened in western Nebraska near the Colorado line.

The Kozina family left Appleton two weeks ago after a month's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Brown. They also visited with Mr. Kozina's parents at Seymour. From Appleton they went to Eau Claire where they visited for a few days with Mrs. Kozina's parents. They left Eau

BOB'S DEATH MAY MEAN PASSING OF INSURGENT BLOC

No Leader Capable of Taking Badger Senator's Place Is in Sight

BY CHARLES F. STEWART
Washington—Upon the next twelve-month political developments growing out of Senator Robert M. La Follette's death depends national Progressive-ism's future, perhaps for many years.

Is Progressive-ism a movement of which La Follette was no more than a part—a mighty important part—but only a part?

Or was he the whole thing? If the former's the case of course, even the death of a strong leader can spell no more than temporary setback, a little more delay.

If the latter, the cause, too, is dead. To be sure, there'll be progress, with a small "p," but the group the Wisconsin senator led inevitably will break up—various political careers, probably, will end with the expiration of current terms.

One thing which suggests weakness, at first thought, may prove to be Progressive-ism's strength—though referred to as a "bloc," it never was a hard-and-fast alignment, like a party with regular adherents, requiring to be led.

Still, La Follette did sound the call for every rally which the independent made.

Will somebody else be found to do this in his place? Or is no particular leader needed?

The next session of Congress will begin to show. Administration spokesmen profess to feel sure already that insurgency is a thing of the past.

In reality, nobody can tell without a definite test.

Progressive-ism's fate depends on a successor to La Follette who can fill his shoes, nobody's in sight.

Senator Borah has the necessary qualities of strength, courage and magnetism, but he isn't a Progressive—with a big "P"—all the time. A follower may be a part-timer, but a leader must be consistently on the job.

Senator Norris is so regular in his Progressive-ism as to be almost the real thing, but he hasn't the pugnacity La Follette possessed. He can put up a terrific fight when he likes, but he doesn't always like.

Senator Wheeler's a "whole hog" Progressive and nobody ever was readier for a scrap, but he isn't as yet a political heavyweight, which is essential in this case.

Besides, he's a Democrat, and to be effective at this time, Progressive-ism needs to draw from the Republicans' strength.

That about exhausts the list of available.

Progressive-ism, if it's to survive without La Follette, must survive on its own merits. It can't hope to be pulled through by virtue of strong leadership.

This, of course, refers to the Progressive-ism which was launched at the Cleveland conference of a year ago.

Something else may develop later along the same lines. That's a different thing.

Needless to say, the regular Republicans will spare no effort, having been afflicted far worse by Progressivism than it has troubled the Democrats, to make Wisconsin safe for regularity at the election of 1926.

With La Follette gone, they are much more hopeful of Senator Lenroot's return to the upper house and hopes are expressed of putting a regular in La Follette's own seat.

They can't do this until November of next year, since the vacancy will be filled temporarily by Governor Blaine's appointment, and as he is a Progressive himself, a Progressive will be his choice.

One remark by Senator Wheeler may prove significant—that "La Follette died will be more powerful even than La Follette alive."

This isn't impossible. His name may become one to confound by.

With his death, much of the bitterness which was felt toward him living, will disappear.

Idealized, it is quite likely there will be immense strength for the cause he preached in his memory—perhaps a strength greater than his own, a living man on the Senate floor.

The last three submitted to operations.

$750,000 IN GAS

TAX IN 2 MONTHS

Drivers Paid Nearly Million Dollars into Treasury,
Leviton Reports

Madison — More than $750,000 has already been collected from the operation of the 2-cent gasoline tax law that went into effect April 1, 1925, according to a statement today by State Treasurer Solomon Leviton.

The statement discloses that $348,932.61 was collected in April and $447,233.51 in May. Receipts for these months are not complete, however. Mr. Leviton stated, since there are a few scattering oil dealers still to be accounted for.

Mr. Leviton announced the machinery for administering the new tax now is working smoothly, and although it has taken a stupendous amount of detail work to perfect the organization the tax is now being collected with little difficulty.

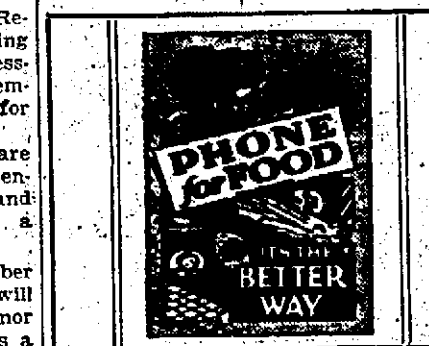

Mr. Leviton estimated the collections from gasoline in dealers hands April 1 to be more than $20,000. Collection from this source, he said, must necessarily be slow, since the revenue will not all be available until the supply has passed out of the dealer's hands through the sale.

CALIFORNIA EARTHQUAKES

The earthquake which has again brought disaster to the Pacific coast discloses once more the insecurity of that portion of the country from this mysterious menace. Science has made much progress in the study of earthquakes, particularly their causes and the possibility of recurrence. Nevertheless, there is an element of conjecture in their conclusions and predictions, so that no section of a country prone to such disturbances knows at what hour they are likely to come, nor the degree of their severity.

The shock at Santa Barbara was heavy and destructive. Had it occurred in a great city like either San Francisco or Los Angeles, it might have been a repetition of the tragedy that overtook the former city nineteen years ago. The shocks were not as intense, but they were enough to destroy buildings and that may cause a conflagration.

Tremors are felt at frequent intervals along the Pacific coast. There was no special reason for believing Santa Barbara in danger. It goes to show that science can have no knowledge of when a seismic disturbance is liable to occur or how bad it may be. People who choose to live in sections of the earth liable to earthquakes and other tragic visitations have to assume the peril of their selection. Of course, very few take it into account, for as to the individual or his property the risk is relatively small. The experience of both San Francisco and Santa Barbara prove the wisdom of applying in California the best known methods of construction for the resistance of earthquakes. There is another lesson in this disaster, and that is the worth of the Red Cross in emergencies and the wisdom and necessity of its maintenance from the national as well as the local standpoint.

PROPAGANDA

The day before the meeting of the council of states in Michigan City, the steamer Agga arrived at that port with a cargo of clay for paper making from Cornwall, England, direct by water all the way without transfer. This is one of eighteen cargoes contracted for to be delivered in the same way during this season. The Buffalo News, hearing of this arrival, suspects that it was arranged for publicity purposes. "The voyage may have been designed for propaganda."

It was clever propaganda if that was the case. The Agga was one of fourteen boats from Europe that plied the Lakes in 1923. She was one of the small fleet that made repeated trips to the Great Lakes during 1924. She is under contract for six round trips this season. The surmise of the Buffalo News is flattering to the foresight of this propaganda.

The News also supposes she brought "clay for the potteries," a trifling misconception. And the News also fears that the voyage will be "unprofitable for want of return cargo." The cargo will "probably have to bear the cost of getting the steamer back to tidewater—perhaps back to the home port." Surmise—confronted by the fact that in previous voyages there have been cargoes both ways, and that the voyages have been profitable to the owners and very profitable to the shippers, and that the Agga has returned with mixed cargo from Chicago, Duluth and furthermore the Cornish Clay, Kaolin used to make high grade print paper.

Finally the News says it does not signify. "Ships from abroad find their way every year to Buffalo and other ports on the Great Lakes." Precisely. And the point is that the associated obstructionists of New York have claimed that it could not be done.

VOLUNTARY SLAUGHTER

In Louisville, Ky., the other day a driver full of moonshine whisky zig-zagged along a highway at high speed and knocked down and killed a man working on his car. He was caught after a chase, brought to court, and sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary for voluntary manslaughter.

The voluntary feature entered into the case not when he struck the man, of whose presence at the time he was probably entirely oblivious, but when he drank the whisky and stepped into the driver's seat of an automobile while under its influence.

Scores of individuals are committing precisely the same crime as this Kentuckian day after day, and getting away with a small fine or a short jail sentence because luck is with them and the manslaughter they constructively purpose when they take the wheel in an intoxicated condition does not happen to occur. They are none the less guilty in point of fact than the individual who must go to the penitentiary. They have first blurred their eyesight and lowered their power of reacting to warnings, and then projected the menace of their ill-driven vehicle upon a crowded highway.

Driving while intoxicated is always intending manslaughter, unless the culprit is so great a moron or idiot as not to be able to foresee the most obvious possible consequences. In cases where an accident does not happen to follow, judges for prevention's sake should apply the full jail penalty of the technically lesser offense. It is less not in justice, but merely in the chance of events.

LOAN TO BELGIUM

Why is it that American investors eagerly oversubscribed a fifty million Belgian loan, at the very time when Belgium was considering, rather doubtfully, taking the first steps to pay, some day, some part of its American war debt?

"American gullibility," the cynics sneer. But J. Pierpont Morgan and his clients are not gulls. They at least think there is a difference.

The difference, doubtless, is between a loan for construction and for destruction. There may be no "moral" difference in the obligations to pay. But there is a great practical difference in the likelihood of payment. A constructive debt pays itself. It is invested in things that produce "the wherewith" to pay it. A destructive debt produces less than nothing. It must be paid by subtracting from the subsequent product of lessened industry, after its destruction is done. If you loan money to two men, one of whom uses it to build a new factory, while the other, in delirium burns up his old factory and the money, they may both be still equally obligated, morally, to repay. But which note will the bank discount?

CHECKS

The American Bankers' Association, through its press bureau, suggests that it is not good policy to carry around a check for an indefinite time before cashing it.

The advice is sound. First of all, it's easy to mislay a check. If you carry it around indorsed and then lose it, the finder will find it as negotiable as specie. If it gets worn or dirtied in your wallet the signature may become almost illegible and your bank may refuse to cash it.

Further, it causes serious inconvenience to the bank. The bank keeps its books carefully balanced, and a check that is made out but not cashed for some time brings no end of annoyance.

When you get a check, cash or deposit it at once.

TODAY'S POEM

By HAL COCHRAN

MYSTERIES

I would like to know the histories of a couple sticking mysteries that concern the little kiddies of today. They are things that keep me guessing; that you'd never call a blessing. They are things that seem to come from kiddies' play.

You'll admit its very shocking, how a youngster's bloomin' stocking seems to wear so long, then quickly give away. At the knee a hole is growing, and the thing that I'd be knowing is just how, and when, and where they get that way.

And the other thing—my spouse is very peeved about the blouses, that she's sewing buttons on from night till dawn. Then the little folks will wear 'em. How the dickens do they tear 'em? Can you tell me where the buttons all have gone? Dress a girl or boy up neatly. Send them out to play, discreetly. Then explain their looks by night time, if you can. Buttons gone and knees protruding. Yet, there is no sense in brooding, for it's happened since the universe began.

QUIET IS CAPABLE

Powerful men and efficient engines do their work quietly. Men are engines when it comes to that some of them flutters, some of them steam, some, and some peer saros.

Twelve hours after the news of the tornado which devastated a section of southern Illinois recently was flashed to Springfield, representatives of the State Department of Health were busy on the job and in 24 hours they had a complete health department organized and functioning. This embraced every avenue or source of disease which such a disaster opens against the survivors. The Illinois State Department of Health was scarcely mentioned in the news stories—the personnel doesn't go in much for pretty posters or romantic propaganda and never puts on a "drive" to collect the high cost of such fancy work—but here is a fact which may now be told: The Illinois State Department of Health gave undertook the medical and nursing relief work for the victims of the tornado and not until the second Sunday after the disaster was this work turned over to the Red Cross.

Some of the things done by the State Department's field staff in the tornado zone were:

(1) First aid and nursing relief to the injured.
(2) Control of communicable diseases by isolation.

(3) Protection of the well population by immunization.

(4) Analysis and placarding of all temporary water supplies and the chlorination of such wells or other sources as were found safe for drinking purposes.

(5) Sanitary inspection and control of milk supplies.

(6) The provision of sanitary privies in districts where sewers were lacking or damaged.

(7) Introduction of a system of garbage collection—such as a heavy blow to that notorious camp follower, the filthy fly.

These things do not sound so important or so wonderful in the mere telling as they are in the accomplishment. Some of them involve the establishment of completely equipped laboratories and laboratory experts on the field. The prevention of typhoid fever alone involved the administration of the typhoid bacterin or anti-typhoid "vaccine" to 4,000 persons in the first two weeks (that is, 4,000 too, advantage of the opportunity to receive the first of the three immunizing doses) and later some 12,000 more availed themselves of this safety first measure. The Illinois State Department of Public Health passed on the sanitary condition of all farms whence came the milk purchased and distributed to victims of the tornado by the Red Cross. The second day after the storm the dreaded gas gangrene developed among some of the injured and several more cases appeared shortly afterward, but through the quiet efficient laboratory and medical section, headed by the Illinois State Department of Public Health this danger was immediately recognized and averted. One might go on enumerating the manifold life saving and comfort giving service rendered by this smooth running machine without any apparent horn, bell or whistle of its own. But there is just one little bit of irony I want to add to the recital:

New York (exclusive of New York city) has a population of 4,959,138 and appropriates annually $1,351,351.78 for the state health department; Pennsylvania, with a total population of 2,908,886 appropriates $2,231,155; Illinois with a total population of 6,877,737 appropriates only $447,670 for the state health department and begrudges the money at that.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Weak Arches.

Please describe exercises which you recommend instead of arch props in cases of weak arches. (F. H. H.)

Answer.—Stand barefoot, with feet parallel and two inches apart. Count one as you forcibly turn the ankles out (into bow legged position) so that your feet will rest upon their outer borders. Count two as you allow the feet to return to the starting position but not all the way. Repeat this from 25 to 100 times night and morning. This and other excellent exercises for weak feet are given in the June number of "Hygeia," which magazine is check full of good sound health stuff.

The little home where I was born is gone, from mortal view: The school house where I went each day—

The gray stone church, all ivy clad. It may be seen no more. The city hall has disappeared. The bank, the grocery store.

Have passed away, I trow; You know the reason well enough— They're filling stations now.

Next thing the city councils are going to prohibit in the way of traffic regulation is the use of streets. They will probably preserve them for posterity and hang them up somewhere in a museum.

A Clayton farmer was halted by an officer on Collegeave for failure to stop for the arterial highway. An hour later he was reprimanded by another officer for stopping in front of the postoffice. The farmer says the traffic laws will be easy to master after he has first learned the fine points of distinction of when to stop and when not to stop.

Here's one stop rule all motorists should observe. If you have violated a traffic rule, and the driver behind you has done the same thing, don't stop for the cop until you know for certain just which one of you he is yelling after.

On the other hand, if you are caught speeding on a rural highway, it will be well to stop as soon as the cop tells you too.

Prompt stopping after being overtaken by a motorcop for speeding may bring you a release. If he calls you down, take the reprimand meekly. If you talk back, out comes the old note book, and you get a sheet.

ROLLO

INDIAN BUREAU

AIMS TO REVIVE ART OF TRIBES

Designs Passed Down from Generation to Generation Will Be Used in Work

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington, D. C.—The bureau of Indian affairs, has recently decided to undertake the revival and stimulation of the native arts of the Pueblo Indians in New Mexico. Particular stress is to be laid upon embroidery, which art has almost been lost among these tribes. While no definite plan has as yet been devised, the first step will be the appointment of a supervisor of native arts. Her exclusive duties will consist of encouraging the Indians, both adults and minors, in practicing their native arts.

For some time people who have worked or lived among the Indians have found that members of the younger generation are inclined to be a little ashamed of their native arts. They strive to copy the designs and types of work done by their white brothers. They do not realize that the art of their fathers has a distinction and dignity which far surpasses many of those they try to imitate.

PROVED ABILITY

A woman who has lived among the Pueblos for several years and has won the confidence and friendship of the Indians tells the story of a small Indian girl to whom she gave a piece of wheat sack with the suggestion that she embroider something thereon. A few days later the child brought back the material and she had put on it the design of a bunny. It was as well done that it displayed decided talent. This woman said: "Why don't you take another piece now, and embroider on it your thunderbird? While the bunny is very good, your race has so many things that are so distinctly native it seems too bad not to use them."

The child took the second piece of material and in a day or so brought it in with a thunderbird embroidered upon it. She had evidently had her father or some older member of her family draw the design for her. This is just one instance where the Indian was persuaded to produce something really representative of him.

All Indian designs are handed down from generation to generation simply by the older showing or telling the younger, or from articles already made. They have never been preserved by drawings or sketches in the manner of the white man. This is one of the reasons for the immediate necessity of reviving this Pueblo art of embroidery if it is not to die out entirely.

UTILITY EMBROIDERED

One of the outstanding features of the new plan is not only to encourage a return to the native art, but to tie it up to something which has utility value. For instance, various types of bags, such as are in vogue at the present time, are being made from the pieces of material on which native designs have been embroidered. Also some very beautiful table runners, table covers and wall designs have been made.

The wheat sacks used in this work are made of coarse, loosely woven material. At first when making the bags the ends were merely whipped over with colored thread. Then it was suggested that this was the way the white woman would do it. The Indian would have woven the ends so that the bag was all in one piece. Therefore, the next bags were made in this fashion. Thus they had a

Q. Are railroad round houses actually round? A. G. S.

A. Roundhouses rarely form a complete circle. When was the first elevated street railway built in New York? G. V. E.

A. The first elevated in New York was a single track line from Battery

Place to 30th street, opened to travel July 2, 1867.

Q. What is the meaning of "ex-dividend" in the stock list? H. E. P.

A. It is the same as "dividend off." The sale of a stock with the agreement that the dividend about to be paid shall not go to the buyer; or that the buyer of a stock is not entitled to next dividend paid.

Q. How many theatres of various kinds are there in New York City? How many are in the so-called Times Square district, the "roaring forties"? W. O. J.

A. The number of legitimate theatres is 180, and motion picture theatres 377. In the streets from about 38th to 50th, with the avenues and Broadway, the number of legitimate theatres is about 60.

Q. Which city was first to have a city manager? M. P. L.

A. The city manager plan was first tried in Staunton, Virginia, in 1908.

Q. How long was Halley's Comet? M. P. H.

A. Size would depend upon its nearness to the earth at the time it is seen. On May 5, 1910 the length of the comet's tail was 97,000,000 miles.

Q. What kind of stone was used in the Pyramids? G. C.

A. The stone used in the construction of the Egyptian Pyramids was from the Turah quarries. It is established that it took 100,000 men working ten years to make a causeway three thousand feet long, to facilitate the transfer of the stone and twenty years more to complete the Pyramid of the Cheops. This Pyramid contains 2,300,000 blocks of stone averaging some forty cubic feet. The blocks came from the Mokattam Hills as well as the Turah, both of which were on the opposite side of the Nile.

Q. Why aren't stars visible in the day time? B. B. C.

A. Stars are not visible during the day because the superior light of the Sun and its reflected rays from the planets on the Earth is so strong as to obliterate the tiny rays from stars so that they make no impression on the retina of the eye. At the bottom of a shaft a very tall chimney where no light enters and the direct rays of sunlight are cut off, the retina registers the rays from the stars and hence they become visible.

Q. When was the first excursion trip made from coast to coast? J. S. A.

A. The Bureau of Railway Economics says that the first transcontinental trip was made by the Boston Board of Trade on an excursion leaving Boston May 24, 1870, and arriving at San Francisco on May 31, 1870.

Q. Are there more divorces now than there were 20 years ago? F. T. A.

A. A comparison of the figures of 1903 and 1923 shows a great increase in number and percentage of divorces. In 1903 in the United States there were 786,132 marriages and 64,925 divorces. In 1923, there were 1,223,323 marriages and 165,129 divorces.

Q. What color varnish did Bergoni use on violins? L. W. P.

A. Hart's "The Violin and Its Makers" contains the following: "The varnish of Bergoni is often fully as resplendent as that of Giuseppe Guarneri or Stradivari and shows him to have been initiated in the mysteries of its manufacture. It is sometimes seen to be extremely thick, at other times but sparingly laid on; often of a deep rich red color, sometimes of a pale red and again of rich amber, so that the variation of color to be met with in Bergoni's violins is considerable."

Q. What is the specific gravity of cork? E. R.

A. It is 0.24.

The conventions which hedge in very rich people are most interesting. If I were nursing at the house of Peter McLean, a two-hundred-a-month clerk, I am sure that Mrs. Burke and Mr. Prescott would be quarreling most of the time. But what they do now is simply avoid each other with regularity and dispatch. When they do meet, it is politeness itself.

Mrs. Prescott's mother is one of the loveliest women I have ever seen. Her face has the beauty of a life well lived, and she evidently has come to realize that everything will come out for the best in the end. She just goes about her own affairs and waits.

Even in my own short life I have learned that there is nothing so hard to do as to wait. I have never before seen the tragedy that lies in the eyes of one of these women who have ceased fighting life's battles, one who sits and waits for what Fate will deal out to him or her.

Even during the night we all thought Mrs. Prescott would not survive she showed no overwhelming devotion, although she has just buried her husband and lost her daughter under the most distressing circumstances.

Poor woman, she had evidently reached the place where all her tears have been shed, and I know to my sorrow that you to have shed many gallons of tears before your soul is dry of emotion.

Mrs. Prescott's oldest boy is a wonderful child, and I never saw a child that so idolizes his mother as that baby—he is only three years old.

When he was brought in to see his new little brother this morning, he hardly paid any attention to him at all. His whole concern seemed to be for his mother, whom he had not seen for a month and whom he had been told was very ill.

June's been a good boy, mummy, but June's so lonesome without you. June pray God, make my mummy all well. June's all sick here when mummy sick," and that blessed baby put his hand over his heart and drew a sobbing breath.

Strange as it may seem, the child has been really ill, taking no interest in anything since his mother has been sick. He has paid no attention to his father or any of those about him, and all the while his only cry has been "I want my mummy! I want my mummy! Why don't she come to June?"

Mr. Prescott seemed more hurt that the child had paid no attention to him than he was anxious about his wife. Every day he would take him in his arms and tell him a long, comforting tale about his "mummy."

"I'll tell you what, old chap," I heard him say one morning as he was rocking the baby in his arms, "you shall see your mother as soon as the doctor will let anyone see her. She wants to see you more than anyone, Jackie. I know she wants to see you more than she does me."

NEWLYWEDS PAY SERENADERS BY BUYING "CONES"

New London—Local citizens thought that the end of the world had arrived about 10 o'clock Tuesday night, when a bedlam broke loose on North W. and South Pearl-sts. A caravan of five cars, headed by a flivver truck, with its box full of old water tanks, tin tubs and pails, and every other kind of noise makers imaginable, and filled with a screeching throng of local citizens, headed by such esteemed personages as Pat Kiefer and Everett Cooley, went tearing down the street to Gordon Mikkelsen's ice cream parlor.

But it was only a charitable party for the new newlyweds, Dr. and Mrs. George Polzin. And inside Gordon's place, they had to give a speech, and treat the crowd to ice cream cones, and then they all went home, and a good time was had by all.

FIRE HYDRANTS ARE INADEQUATE

Fire Department Tests Show That Many Hydrants Are Unfit for Use

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Two more testing trips were made by the local fire department on Tuesday, one in the morning, and the other in the evening. Nearly all of the hydrants on the north side of the river have been tested, and the department will now make tests on the south side. It was found that the city has at the present time, very poor protection from its hydrants. Many of the hydrants were found to be either broken entirely, or defective, thus rendering them unfit for use in case of fire. The city is supplying new ones as fast as possible. The pressure on the whole is adequate, but the old type of 4 inch hydrant is not large enough to supply a sufficient quantity of water.

A mechanic of the Four Wheel Drive Co. of Clintonville, was sent here on Tuesday morning and was present at the morning trip, inspecting the work of the pumper.

COTTAGERS AT LAKE PROTEST PHONE CHARGES

Telephone Company's Demand for Higher Rate Gets Kick from Resorters

Cottagers and campers at the beaches on Lake Winnebago have raised objections to the new telephone rates that will be in force there this year.

The campers as rural line subscribers of the Wisconsin Telephone company pay the rural rates. But owing to the fact that many of the territory residents stay at the beach only about two or three months of the year, they in previous years obtained a concession from the telephone company whereby they paid only half the rate, which would amount to $15.

Following a general increase in telephone rates this year, the telephone company with an eye to the expense entailed in installing and removing the telephones now requires the full year's rate of $30.

Campers have sent a letter of protest to the Wisconsin Railroad Commission at Madison asking for an investigation, and if possible, an adjustment.

POSTMASTERS TO MEET IN ANTIGO

Zuehlke Goes to Milwaukee to Help Arrange for Annual Convention

Postmaster William H. Zuehlke will leave Thursday morning for Milwaukee to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Wisconsin Postmasters association to make arrangements for the coming convention of the association in Antigo on Aug. 4 and 5.

Originally the committee had selected Stevens Point for this year's convention seat, but it later yielded to a request of the Wisconsin League of District Postmasters to hold the convention jointly with them at Antigo. The Wisconsin Postmasters association consists principally of postmasters of the first and second class, although it also includes some heads of third and fourth class offices, but the latter also maintain a separate organization for themselves known as the Wisconsin League of District Postmasters. The association officers thought it could obtain a larger attendance by having both associations meet at the same place and at the same time.

At the third and fourth class office postmasters held their convention in Appleton, although this is an office of the first class.

aside from being a movie star, is also a dancer par excellence. Neither did we until we saw her latest picture, "One Year to Live," which First National is offering at the Elite Theatre for the last time tonight.

Aileen's role here is that of a petite maid to a temperamental star in a Parisian theatre. Dances, sings, much like dancing does it? But when the star, in one of her "moods," refuses to dance, Aileen steals forth in her costume and captures the audience. And she really dances—much better than the average dancer you see on the stage.

Antonio Moreno and Dorothy Mackaill are co-featured with her in this picture, produced by M. C. Leves under direction of Irving Cummings.

"The Uninvited Guest," a Metro

picture presented by J. E. Williamson, is coming to the Elite Theatre on Thursday and Friday with its fascinating story of love and intrigue in the South Sea Isles, photographed partly in natural colors by means of the Technicolor, and produced by the Submarine Film Corporation. Curtis Bennett wrote the story, and Ralph Ince directed the picture. In the cast of which are Jean Tolley, Mary MacLaren, Maurice "Lefty" Flynn, William Bailey and Louis Wolheim.

CORINNE GRIFFITH IN UNIQUE PRODUCTION WITH SPECTACULAR SCENES AND THRILLS "Island Wives," which will be shown at the New Bijou Theater today and Thursday was made under the direction of Webster Campbell on the coast of Florida, a few miles south of Miami. Here some wonderful tropical backgrounds were secured and some ideal scenes on board a palatial private yacht a few miles off the shore.

Vitaphone makes the claim that "Island Wives" is one of the few pictures about the South Seas ever made which shows life in that mysterious clime as it really is. The story was taken from the novel by Bob Dexter, who knows the south Pacific. He portrays the true existence in the islands, not an endless round of Hula dancing and surf-board riding, but a drab, lonely, eventless life which by its monotony almost drives the heroine mad. Yet when tricked into marriage with a rich scoundrel, who makes her believe her first husband is dead, she longs for the free and untroubled life of her former days. By a complicated and unexpected course of events she is at length reunited with her true husband in their island home.

In this production Corinne Griffith is ably supported by a notable cast which includes Charles Trowbridge, Rockcliffe Fellows, Ivan Christy and many others.

CODE OF THE WEST
The striking thing about the picture version of Zane Grey's "Code of the West," is that although it was written by Mr. Grey in his characteristic vivid and colorful style with a rugged western setting, there isn't a single pistol shot fired in the entire production and only on two occasions are guns displayed. The picture concerns itself primarily with the romance of a cowboy and a flapper. The girl, who goes out west for her health, typifies the jazz life of the east. She deliberately plans to attract the young westerner, but laughingly turns him down when he proposes. But in the west such conduct is not easily condoned, she earns to her dismay. The cowboy kidnaps her. The ensuing scenes comes as a fitting and tremendous climax to the series of tense, dramatic moments occasioned by the kidnapping. Constance Bennett, recently appearing in "The Goose Hangs High" plays the part of the flapper to a perfection. Owen Moore, popular film star has the leading male role. Others included in the cast are Charles Ogle, David Butler, and Mabel Ballin. On the same program will be the latest release of the new sensational comedy discovery, Harry Langdon. In a little over a year's time this comedian has risen so rapidly in favor that he is now being starred in feature length comedies, now being produced. The title of the two reel comedy on this program is "The Sea Squawk." Also Aesop's Fables and Newspaper Fun.

SHERIFF POSSE SWOOPS DOWN ON HUGE STILL

John Ralvon of Helvetia Held by Waupaca-co Officials
Following Raid

Special to Post-Crescent
Waupaca—Sheriff William Toepke and Undersheriff Halbert Swenson made one of the largest raids on moonshiners in the history of Waupaca Monday night in the town of Helvetia, seven miles northwest of Jola. As a result John Ralvon was taken into custody together with his outfit which consisted of 17 barrels of mash, two 20-gallon stills and a quantity of moonshine. The entire equipment was located in a shack in a swamp where manufacture was being carried on. The arrest is the result of a search warrant secured by the sheriff after picking up a few drunks who had purchased liquor from the accused. Ralvon was to appear on Wednesday before Justice Scott for a preliminary hearing.

Arthur LaValley was committed to the state prison at Waupun Tuesday after he had failed to raise $10,000 bail which Judge Park set for his liberty pending an appeal to the supreme court. LaValley received a sentence of ten years for assault on a young girl after a second trial, the first ending in a disagreement of the jury. L. D. Smith of this city, the attorney who represented him at the last trial, will handle his case before the supreme court. On his trip to Waupun, LaValley was accompanied by Sheriff Toepke, Undersheriff Swenson and City Traffic officer Arthur Hewitt. Mrs. LaValley bid her husband good-bye at the county jail. Their two children were not present.

Reports that Joseph Stadler, Jr., county coroner resigned under fire are said to be untrue. Waupaca-co officials, when interviewed on the subject, have stated that Mr. Stadler resigned to accept a rural carrier's job out of Manawa and was not able to hold a coroner's position on account of postal regulations. His resignation was tendered before the incident at New London in which the mother of an infant found in the Wolf river was cleared of all criminal charges. Louis Stadler, county treasurer and brother of the former coroner, said the coroner's office had nothing to do with the case. Gov. Blaine has appointed Clifford Roman of Manawa, as coroner upon recommendation of Mr. Stadler.

Marriage licenses issued for the week ending June 30 for Waupaca-co were as follows: Harrison Shaw, L'Anse, Mich., to Cora S. Dorrude, Jola; Arthur A. Krueger, New London to Lois Talady, New London; Emil Scheweide, New London, to Dorothy Phelps, Ogdensburg; Joseph Stadler, Jr., Manawa; to Mary Spanbauer, Oshkosh.

During the three days in which time the American legion post here conducted the drive for the Waupaca share of the legion's $5,000,000 endowment fund, somewhat more than $500 was raised. The quota was set at $865. It has not been decided if the drive will be extended to make up the balance.

Waupaca Electric Service company has finished erecting the power extension line as far as the Indian Crossing casino, a distance of about two miles over which the company were required to put up poles. Farms, cottages and the casino will be lighted and power offered for other purposes. A controversy has arisen over the right to furnish light and power to the residents of the town of Farmington. The railroad rate commission will have a hearing in the near future in the city of Waupaca. A power company with a line at Amherst wants this territory.

Levi Boyce of Waupaca, appeared in district court before Justice Hoist on Tuesday morning to answer to the charge of speeding and reckless driving. It was thought Mr. Boyce would make a plea of not guilty and Attorney Hart was engaged to represent the city. However, Boyce pleaded guilty and was assessed $10 with costs of $5.25.

Earl Fabricius will reopen his soft drink parlor and pool room at 112 Main-st., after some improvements have been made. The bowling alleys in the basement are also to be remodeled.

Prof. Watson, superintendent of Waupaca schools, is taking special work at the University of Iowa.

CROSS COUNTRY WITH DOG TEAM

Minnesota Men With Unique
Outfit Stop at Weyauwega
Camping Grounds

Special to Post-Crescent
Weyauwega—Traveling from Grand Maria, Minn., to New York by dog team, camping along the way. W. A. Blomberg and O. B. Chamberlain, with their 20 dogs in two teams of nine dogs each stopped over Sunday at the tourist camp in the fair grounds at Weyauwega.

There are 12 malamuts, Alaskan dogs; three Green River huskies all of which are a mixture of dog and wolf, and five common dogs which are used as leaders in the teams.

The party composed of W. A. Blomberg, O. B. Chamberlain, "Shorty" Mann and O. C. Chamberlain, Jr., left Grand Maria, Minn., about 60 miles from the Canadian line, about two months ago and are 1,500 miles on their way to New York, traveling from 20 to 40 miles at a time, according to the weather and roads, resting a day or two between times.

The northern dogs are very hardy, being fed on cornmeal, mush and meat. At Mondovi, Wis., six tiny puppies were born. They are now three weeks old and travel in one of two, will spend Sunday with relatives near the city.

The annual strawberry festival held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kissinger took place Sunday. Among those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dressen and children and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kissinger of Marion.

Mrs. Ralph Fabricius, W. Union-st. entertained the S. A. T. club at a 6:30 dinner at her home Monday evening.

the wagons. They had traveled 25 miles before they were 24 hours old. The wagons are light, rubber tired and are a sort of cart. The driver stands up behind and works a lever which acts as a steering device.

The leaders are driven by a "gee" and a "haw" as oxen were driven by our grandfathers and the rest of the dogs follow. The dogs are eager to go when they start out but after a long journey are ready to relax and lie down to sleep. No matter how tired, they respond to their master's voice. In the winter the dogs are hitched to sleds and the driver said that they can go a great deal faster than with the carts.

The two teams, hitched to express wagons, raced around the fair ground track at Modern Woodman picnic Sunday. Mr. Blomberg's team winning the race.

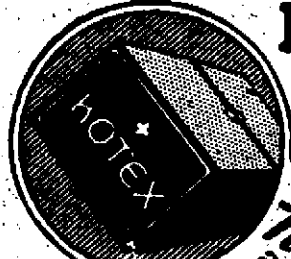

The party left Monday morning, going toward Oshkosh, and after July 4 expects to go to Seymour, Mr. Chamberlain's old home.

CENTER SWAMP ROAD IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

Automobilists were compelled to wait Tuesday when a portion of highway 47 was closed to traffic owing to repairs being made on the one-mile stretch of macadam road going through Center swamp.

A crew of county highway employees were at work in smoothing up the road by filling in the holes and ruts with crushed stone and tar. The road was open again Wednesday morning. Similar work has been done on a four-mile stretch of the county line road between Outagamie and Calumet-counties, sometimes known as the Appleton-Darby-rd. Rains and heavy travel when the roads were soft had worn deep ruts in the road sometimes 15 feet in length and 8 inches deep.

George Smith, Center Valley farmer, is building a new porch to his home.

RETAIL LUMBER VALLEY SOCIETY DEALERS FORM

William Fountain Elected President of Association at First Meeting

A new federation of Fox River valley business men came into being Tuesday when retail lumber men of this area met at a dinner in the Conway hotel Tuesday evening and organized the Fox River Valley Retail Lumbermen's club.

About 20 lumber dealers from Appleton, Kaukauna, Neenah, Menasha, Little Chute and Kimberly were in attendance. Officers were elected for the first year of the club with the first presidency going to William Fountain, head of the J. Fountain Lumber company, Appleton.

Elmer Root, also of Appleton, was elected secretary and treasurer of the new association. The club selected an executive committee consisting of William G. Commey, Appleton, Elmer Root and Frank Durham, Neenah. The committee will prepare a program of work and arrange for the next meeting.

The club was organized along the same lines and same purposes as the retail grocers associations and similar business organizations with the aim of conferring on affairs of the lumber business in which the various dealers have a common interest.

Although the club will maintain no direct affiliation with the state and national lumber dealers associations, most of the members are individually members of the larger units. Mr. Fountain last year was elected president of the state association.

PLEA FOR WRIT FILED TOO LATE

Property Was Sold Before St. Paul Salesman Could Get Injunction

A civil action brought by A. S. Murphy of St. Paul against A. L. Nichols and other parties involving an attempt to obtain an injunction restraining the defendant from transferring certain property of the A. L. Nichols, Inc. plant was amicably settled Monday after arguments were made in circuit court before Judge Edgar N. Werner on a motion for the injunction.

It was found that the property affected by the suit had already been transferred and that a restraining order was no longer possible. Further proceedings were stayed by settlement.

Murphy, a salesman, had agreed to purchase and sell a quantity of the product of the A. L. Nichols, Inc. manufacturers of a headlight glare absorbing shield, but when his contract payments lapsed the property was transferred to the Lysse Aluminum company of Kewauqua, which was made a co-defendant in the action. It was to intercept the transfer that the action was begun.

John Klavin of Bouck, Milton Klavin and Dempsey of Oshkosh, and Harvey Sargent of St. Paul, represented the plaintiff, and Morgan and Johns of Appleton, represented the defendants.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE INC.

Instantly he was beside her bed holding her close stroking her perturbed hair.

"Darling, I was a brute to do it, but I'd always heard that ice water was a sure cure for hysterics."

Dick stopped talking and put a finger to his lips in warning. From the stairway came the tinkle of dishes and the aromatic smell of fresh coffee.

Maggie, Mother Gregory's maid, walked into the room carrying a huge tray!

"Here she is! The world's best cook!" Dick said with a flourish. "Mother has promised to lend Maggie to us for a few weeks, until you get your bearings, Glory."

"Indeed, I wanted to come, Mr. Dick," Maggie said heartily.

"I phoned Mother last night that you were ill, and Maggie came over first thing this morning," Dick explained when the door had closed upon Maggie's broad back. And she sent word that you are not to worry about her. She says she can get along beautifully, alone, for a few weeks."

It had not occurred to Gloria to worry about Dick's mother, in a maidless house. She seemed so large and capable... so adequate to any of the small worries of life.

There was breakfast for two on the tray. Chilled grapefruit, shirred eggs, and coffee with thick cream.

Gloria beamed at Dick over the rim of her cup. Her eyes were soft as a child's, once more.

"Darling, I was dreadful last night, wasn't I? Tell me I don't deserve such a duck of a husband!" she cooed. She patted Dick's big hand. She was yielding and adorable now that she actually had a cook in the house.

For she had had her own way, as she always had since the day she was born!

"I'm afraid my Gloria is a spoiled child," Dick said, but his voice was deep with love.

"Next time she has a tantrum I'm going downtown and play poker all night with the boys," he finished.

Gloria gave a gasp of surprise. This from Dick!

"Just you try staying out nights!" she cried. "Just you try to pull anything like that on me! Do you know what I'll do?"

Dick laughed good-naturedly.

"Well, what would you do if I committed such a crime?" he asked.

"Break a butter dish, or something like that?"

"I'd be off in a flutter of dust, right back to my mother and father! And you could keep bachelor's hall here all by your lonesome," Gloria told him. "I'm not going to be like poor Lolo Hough, waiting alone night after night for Bill to stop gambling and stagger home!"

She meant what she said. She'd show him a thing or two!

Lola Hough, with her tired wrinkled face, might have to take such treatment patiently. But she, herself, didn't. Not for a minute! With her looks!

Besides she knew she could manage Dick. He was helpless, because of his love for her.

As soon as Dick had left for the office, Gloria put on her kimono and went downstairs. In the kitchen Maggie was singing "Mother Machree" as she washed dishes.

"Maggie," Gloria said politely, "I'd like you to plan all the meals while you're here, and order the food, as well. Will that be too much extra work for you?"

Maggie considered.

"Mrs. Gregory told me I was to come here to teach you to cook and keep house," she answered. "She always does her own marketing. And she can cook the grandest meals!"

"I know," Gloria said, "but I'm different. I don't know a thing about running a house. I couldn't plan a meal if my life depended on it. And I wouldn't know a tender chicken from one old as the hills!"

She laid her manicured hand pleadingly on Maggie's rough one. She knew that the older woman was flattered by this offer of new dignity and power.

"All right," Maggie said finally. "I'll do it for you."

Gloria breathed a smile of relief. She ran upstairs and started the steaming water for her bath. There was a large bottle of rose bath-salts on the glass shelf beside the tub.

Gloria threw in two big handfuls. The bath-water began to smell like a Persian garden.

Out in her bedroom the French clock on the dressing-table chimed. Twelve o'clock!

A month ago 12 o'clock would have found her out on E. College-ave, on her way to lunch with dozens of other pretty girls who worked for a living.

Now she was Mrs. Richard Gregory, pampered and idle. She hadn't a trouble in the world! Her greatest worry was to decide what kind of earrings to wear with the dress she had chosen for the day.

Ah, this was the life! This was what she was born for!

She smiled at her enchanting face in the glass, as she rubbed perfume behind her pink ears.

The telephone rang.

"Hello, sweet thing!" It was May Seymour's light voice that came over the wire. "I heard you were home. How's married life?"

"Wonderful of course! You should just see all the things I bought in Montreal! Come over, can't you? I have the darlings bottle of perfume for you—Chinese waterlily. Right from Paris it came!" Gloria said.

"I'll be right over to get it," May laughed. And by the time Gloria was dressed, May's smart little car was at her door.

Gloria brought treasure after treasure from the unpacked trunk... lip sticks that were indelible, geranium rouge, stockings the color of sunburnt skin, a three-strand pearl necklace, and the new fur coat.

She held the coat up for May to admire.

"My dear, you remind me of the Queen of Sheba, and nobody else but!" May exclaimed in her cheerful slangy way. "I've got to trot along now. I have a heavy date with the hairdresser. But first I'm going to open this wonderful perfume you've given me, and douse it all over my coat. Mumm! Isn't that the most heavenly smell? Just think angel, you wouldn't have all this sudden wealth if it hadn't been for me!"

It was true. For Gloria had met Dick through May and her husband. May and Gloria had gone to business college together. Then May had found a job in Dr. John Seymour's office and had married him. And at one of their parties, Gloria had first seen big, quiet Dick Gregory, and had marked him for her own.

Her eyes were dreamy as she thought of that long-ago night. Dick had driven her home from the party, and had roughly kissed her good-night at the door.

She had known instantly that he meant it... that he was not just "petting."

"I can marry that man!" she had told her mirror that night, with the memory of Dick's hard kiss still on her mouth. "I can marry that man and all his money, if I want to!"

Well, she had wanted to... and so she had married him.

After May had gone, Gloria put on her hat and the new fur coat to go to see her mother. She hadn't telephoned her since she had come home.

"Don't bother about getting lunch for me," she told Maggie. "I ate a big breakfast, and I'm afraid of getting fat."

"Have just a cup of tea and a bit of salad," Maggie said. She couldn't understand those women who were afraid to eat, lest they gain a few pounds. She thought they'd all look better if they had a little flesh on their bones.

But Gloria shook her head.

Appleton baseball fans will have a chance to see plenty of action at Brandt park Saturday afternoon when Fond du Lac invades this city for a game with Appleton in the Eastern Wisconsin league. The Baetzmen are third in the league, with Plymouth on top, and Fond du Lac in second place. Plymouth climbed to first Sunday by virtue of a hardwon 4 to 2 victory over Appleton, while Fondy dropped its game to Oshkosh, 3 to 1, but still held second.

Most of the Fondy players are old State leaguers. Smith or Leu probably will take the mound for the visitors Saturday with Horey behind the plate. Baetz will have the choice of H. Tornow, Crowe or Relfike as pitcher, while Last will catch. Probably Tornow will start on the mound, while the other two twirlers will be held in reserve.

An attempt will be made to get Len Smith or Harry Sylvester to hold down right field in the Saturday game, and Koch, a Kaukauna product who has been playing in Loyal, is trying out for the infield. Baetz is making every effort to bolster his team for the hard battle expected with Fondy, and as every game so far has been close, the fans may expect a good game no matter which side wins.

With the exception of Plymouth, which has won both its games, Appleton has held its own with every other team so far, winning one and losing one. This will be the first clash with Fond du Lac, however, and the Baetzmen are working out daily to get set for the tilt. Tornow will be pitching his first home game against Fond du Lac Saturday. He has been going strong in outside games and fans will watch closely to see how he does his stuff here.

Sunday afternoon Appleton journeys to Oshkosh. Fond du Lac invades Plymouth and Chilton plays at Campbellsport.

Yost, director of athletics at the University of Michigan, during Tuesday's session of the National Education association. "They set an example of excellence," Mr. Yost continued. "A track race is an inspiration for the mediocre student who wishes to better himself and his track abilities. Without competitive athletics, interclass and intramural sports probably would die for lack of inspiration and incentive."

The lessons to be learned by the student from competitive athletics, the Michigan director said, are "concentration of purpose," "cooperation," "self reliance" and "loyalty."

TIGERS HAVE THREE MEN AMONG LEADERS

At this writing the Detroit Tigers have three men right up with the leaders in the American League batting columns. They are Cobb, Wingo and Hellmann. Cobb also ranks with the top-notchers in scoring runs and has done well to date in crashing out homers.

BOB MEUSEL RISING INTO HOMERUN CLASS

Bob Meusel of the Yankees is developing into quite a homerun hitter these days. In the first two months of play he banged out 16 circuit clouts, ranking one behind Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals in this respect. A year ago at this time, Meusel had but two four-baggers to his credit which shows a vast improvement in his present efforts.

HOMER HAZEL

Winning a quartet of letters in as many collegiate sports is a bit out of the ordinary in these days of rivalry and keen competition. But that's the record Homer Hazel hung up during the recent year at Rutgers. He got his "R" in football, baseball, basketball and track. He was an All-American backfield selection last fall. Hazel graduated in June with the rank of one of the greatest all-around athletes in Rutgers' history.

CLOSE SEASON ON BEAVER, PHEASANT

Legislature Passes Game Bill in Final Hour Before Sine de Adjournment

Madison.—Beaver, pheasants, quail and partridges were protected by the Wisconsin legislature in its final hour.

Just before sine die adjournment Monday it was discovered that through an error the composite fish and game bill failed to provide a close season on beaver and the game birds. A bill by Assemblyman Clinton G. Price, Mauston, providing for a short open season for beaver and a closed season throughout the year for Mongolian, Chinese, ring-necked and English pheasants, quail, bobwhites, and Hungarian partridges, was the last measure enacted by the two houses.

VARSITY OFFERS COACHING COURSE

George Little Announces Institution of New Study for Men at Wisconsin

Madison.—Better arrangements for teaching coaching and physical education are to be offered at the University of Wisconsin as the result of the establishment of a regular four-year course in the subject, according to an announcement made Tuesday by George Little, director of athletics.

"Wisconsin was the first university to establish such a course, starting in 1911, the announcement said, 'but that course was designed for both men and women students, and now will be continued for women while the new course has been outlined to meet the particular needs of men.'

"The 'block form' of athletic work is the basis of the new course, which permits the special athletic technique, special coaching and practice teaching work to be covered by a program of two hours a day, giving students replacing individual physical education courses, will suit seasonal conditions and give the most practical use of time devoted to athletics.

WOODENWARES CLINCH HOLD ON LEAGUE LEAD

Menasha.—Menasha Woodenwares Saturday tightened their hold on the lead in the Menasha Industrial Baseball league when they defeated the Cartons, 6 to 2, in a wellplayed game.

The league leaders are composed of first youngsters, and although some winners had little difficulty in handling them their drubbing.

Williams Resch and Day were the battery for the Cartons, while Mayefski and Omar did their stuff for the Woodenwares. Mayefski held the Cartons sluggers to six scattered hits.

Williams, a heavy centerfielder, was knocked from the box. Dombrowski who singled in the sixth, stole second, third and home.

The Woodenwares are scheduled to meet the Santa Publishing Co. team Tuesday.

KEARNS CAN'T SECOND WALKER, MOGULS RULE

By Associated Press
New York—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker, today was denied permission by the state athletic commission to second Walker in his fight with Harry Greb, world middleweight champion, at the Polo grounds Thursday night.

SHERWOOD TEAM HANDS DARBOY DRUBBING, 13-3

Sherwood Baseball team won its second game Sunday, defeating Darboy, 13 to 3. The game was close until the fifth inning when Sprangers, the Darboy pitcher, began to weaken and the Sherwood sluggers knocked him all over the lot. Ackerman was in the box for Sherwood, and in addition to holding Darboy to five well scattered hits helped win his own game with a fourbagger and a brace of singles.

On July 4 and 5, Sherwood is scheduled to meet two fast Menasha teams at High Cliff park. Other teams desiring games with Sherwood are requested to address J. C. Hallett, manager of the team.

WINNER OF OPEN TITLE

It was Barnes' first victory in the hopes and ambitions of Johnny Bull and Company another rufid jolt by winning the British open golf crown over the historic Troon course the other day.

Barnes came through with a 300 card, a sensational 70 on the first day which smashed the record for the layout, momentarily, standing him in good stead for the final rounds.

Since Barnes' first victory in the classic and the fourth time in the last five seasons that the honors have been won by a player representing this country. Barnes won the national open championship in 1921.

Season Of New Shortstops Brings All Small Packages

BY BILLY EVANS

This is a season of new shortstops in the American league.

Incidentally, it is an interesting fact that the latest crop comes in small packages.

Jackie Tavener of Detroit, Davis of the Chicago White Sox, Wanninger of New York and Connolly of the Boston Red Sox are all "half-pint" athletes.

There is no more important position on the ball field than that of shortstop. The great Eddie Collins, once remarked to me that playing second base was a vacation in comparison to shortstop.

Collins is just about the best second baseman the game ever produced, his idea of the value of shortstop play is very interesting.

There have been few great teams in the history of baseball that didn't boast a star at shortstop. Much of the inside play of the infield revolves about that position.

The break in the play of the New York Americans had the passing of Shortstop Everett Scott as the big reason.

SCOTT'S PASSING HURT

Scott, one of the greatest shortstops the game has ever produced, an athlete who for more than eight seasons didn't miss a game finally was counted out by Father Time.

The passing of Scott spelled disaster for the Yankees. It was like a racing machine trying to establish a record with a flat tire.

I am inclined to think that the Yankee club will experience a similar condition when Roger Peckinpaugh is no longer able to fill the bill at shortstop.

However, there is a end to the career of every star, no matter how brilliant. The passing of veteran shortstop calls for the introduction of a new crop of youngsters.

The American league is going through a situation this season. Four of the eight shortstops are recruits. Five, when you consider Lamotte, who is subbing for the injured Walter Gerber of the St. Louis Browns.

It is sort of traditional that small players make the best shortstops, although there have been decided exceptions like Hans Wagner. As a matter of fact, Roger Peckinpaugh, five feet 10 inches, is the tallest player in the American League at the position.

HE SUPPLANTED RIGNEY

The four new recruits to break in to the American league this year, Tavener, Wanninger, Davis and Connolly are all from two to five inches shorter than Peckinpaugh.

Some idea of Tavener's worth can be gleaned from the fact that he supplanted so good a player as Rigney. His work has featured the play of the Detroit Tigers.

In Wanninger, known as "Peewee," because of his size or lack of it, the Yankees appear to have picked up a great prospect.

The 1925 crop of recruit shortstops certainly makes it seem that worth while players at that position come in small packages.

SENATORS AND PIRATES TAKE PLACE IN LEAD

Walter Johnson Allows but Two Hits in Final Game of June

New York—A disturbance of marked intensity has been registered in baseball. Where once stood a peaceful Philadelphia and a fearsome Giant, there are now an austere Senator and a belligerent Pirate.

The mighty Walter Johnson came forth Tuesday to lift his Washington brethren to the heights over the Athletics. Meanwhile Jack Scott killed the Giant hopes by failing to halt the Braves.

Johnson made June's last of its rarest days, permitting only two hits. Meanwhile the Senators were busy with the offerings of Slim Harris and the result was 7 to 0.

Little Johnny Cooney cut down the Giants right and left for a Boston victory, 3 to 2, permitting the Pirates to spend their energy in a losing battle with the Cubs, 1 to 0.

Sam Jones went out for the New York Yankees and captured his tenth victory of the season from the Red Sox, 3 to 0.

The White Sox required 12 innings to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 1.

Cleveland, staging a five-run rally in the sixth, overcame the Tigers 6, to 3.

The Phillies and Dodgers also traveled extra innings, the decision finally going to Fletcher's squad, 10 to 9.

ERRORS LOSE SHOEMEN GAME

Postmaster Specials Nose Out Weyedemans Shoes in Kimberly

Flocks of errors by the Weyedemans Shoes helped the Postmaster Specials to a 13 to 17 win in the Kimberly Softball Baseball league Tuesday afternoon. Each of the teams got eleven hits, but the Postmasters bunched most of theirs in the fifth and sixth for eleven runs in those two innings, which put them five runs in the lead.

The Shoemen got off to a good start and kept ahead up to the fifth. They drove in four runs in the initial stanza, three in the third and one in the fourth, while the Postmen got two in the first, one in the third and one in the fourth. After the Weyedemans had tallied two more in the fifth their rivals copped five and then six more in the next stanza. Four runs in the seventh for the Shoemen evened the score again, but the Postmasters, got one in their half of the inning and drew ahead. The ninth stanza brought two runs to each team and made it 13 to 17 in favor of the Postmen.

STORY ANOTHER SPLENDID WORK

Reader of "Ship of Souls"
Sure to Regret There Is Not More to the Story

BY MATT C. ROEMER

Emerson Hough, best known through his masterpiece "The Covered Wagon," added another gripping romance to his long list in "The Ship of Souls," a tale of the far north, published after his death by D. Appleton and Company. French-Canadian legendary lore and the most modern magic rub elbows at the Hudsons Bay trading post where Langley Barnes fights and wins his battle with the problem of life and love, and the savage realities of the struggle for existence near the Poles is vividly contrasted with the pampered ease and luxury of modern civilization. Action is rapid and gripping in this tale of two worlds, and in reading it one lives with the characters portrayed as only Hough can paint them. Langley Barnes, who has won fortune, and with his gold, a modern wife incapable of love, selfish and pleasure loving, has left his world to escape the superficial empty chase after thrills, and seeks refuge in a trading post hidden near the arctic circle. The half-breed factor of Fort McTavish, Angus Garth, refuses him welcome but bids him stay after he has shown himself able to cope with the wilderness, and determines to make him factor and mate him with one of his daughters. Christine, the child of Angus and the wife of a missionary with whom Angus has buried his hope of heaven, has been guarded from all hardship and taught all that may be learned from books. Annette, on the other hand, is daughter to Angus and an Indian woman, and is more Indian than white. Between these two, the sacred and the other profane love, Barnes must make his choice, the mad factor, decrees.

The fact that Barnes already has a wife does not deter him from giving him his beloved daughter Christine, for he believes that Barnes has heard the song of the Lost Souls in the Chasse Galere, the ship of souls, and thus has himself become one of them, never to return to the life he has known.

Into this situation comes Major Churchill of the Mounted Police who has taught Christine to sing as only a great artist can. The arrival of Churchill and the attempted robbery of the post by his two chance rescuers, brings the mad factor to the factor to a climax, and with it the story.

How Barnes and Christine solve their problem, aided by fate in the shape of the radio and aeroplane is related with a vividness that grips one to the last word of the final line, and one lays the book aside regretting that there is no more of it.

The manuscript of Harry Hervey's novel, "Ethan Quest," which has just appeared in book form, was saved from destruction this spring when the De Soto Hotel, Savannah, was burned. Hervey had his studio in the top story. It was furnished with the writer-traveler's fine Oriental collection. All of this was completely destroyed; but two friends in the author's absence sealed the outside of the building and, at the risk of their lives, saved the manuscript which was just ready to go North to the publishers. Their feat is now being rewarded by the high praise which the book is receiving. The story of "Ethan Quest" tells of a young man's search for an ideal Romance which takes him into the strange places of the Far East, familiar to Harry Hervey through his travels.

A CENTURY THAT MARCHED IN PAIRS

Whatever the nineteenth century may have looked like to the people who lived in it, it is a curious fact that in the retrospect that century's English writers seem to have marched in pairs. Undoubtedly at the time it did not seem like that because around each pair were schools and groups and scattered individuals. History, literary or otherwise, almost never looks the same to contemporaries as it does to posterity.

But notice how the century seems to be "paired up" in English literature as we look back upon it from the vantage point of today: In poetry Keats and Shelley during the first quarter, in fiction Dickens and Thackeray during the second and third quarters, in poetry again Tennyson and Browning during the second and third quarters, in fiction Hardy and Meredith during the last quarter and the first decade of the twentieth century. Offhand I know of no other century in English literature or in any other literature that has so marched in pairs so far as its major writers are concerned.

Neither is this an arbitrary pairing of great names to make a point. Any one saturated with English literature will invariably think of Shelley when Keats is mentioned or vice versa, of Thackeray when Dickens is mentioned, of Browning when Hardy is mentioned. The only pair about which there is some slight doubt is the last named; they are almost literary individuals but the others are always regarded in the retrospect as teams.

TEAMS BUT HOSTILE

But that does not mean that they were teams in real life. Far from it. One of the most interesting facts about the country is that those teammates in the retrospect were always invariably more or less hostile toward one another in life.

If we are not deeply read in the details of the literary history of the century we think of Keats and Shelley as spiritual brothers, close literary kin, intimate friends. Nothing is more untrue. Shelley was the one person in the Leigh Hunt circle whom Keats did not care for. There was only three years difference in their age, their literary interests were the same, but

NOVEL BECOMES MOVIE

Peter B. Kyne has returned to New York from the Pacific Coast where he has been busy for some time in getting the screen drama of his novel "Never the Twain Shall Meet" ready for presentation.

AUTHOR GOES HOME

Edison Marshall, whose recent novel "The Sleeper of the Moonlit Ranges" is being well received, has gone back to the Northwest—the scene of so many of his romances—after several months spent in the Southeast—namely Georgia.

FAIL ANNOUNCEMENT

Minton, Balch & Company announce that Marjorie Barkley McClure's new novel, "A Bush That Burned," will be published by them in September. It will be remembered that Mrs. McClure is the authoress of "High Fires," one of the successful novels of 1924.

SUMMER CROPS

J. Russell Smith, Swathmore, Pa., on Big Crops From Little Gardens: "It

they did not let it off very well together. Keats opened his heart to Hunt and Clarke and several others some of them men much older and who were such nonentities that their names no longer mean anything, but he was hardly more than a formal friend of Shelley's the one man who has marched down the century in team with him.

The same thing is to some degree true of Dickens and Thackeray. Dickens won fame easily and early, being under 28 when he became a national figure. Thackeray had to sweat for his fame and it was long years in coming. The two great novelists of the period were friends and they said generous things about one another in print but there was envy and jealousy between them. They were much more truly rivals than team-mates in literature.

ASK FOR CONTINUANCE IN HOUSE RENTAL SUIT

Continuance of the suit of Mr. and Mrs. Wenzel Hantisch vs. George Driesen for rental due on a house on S. Lawrence was asked for by the parties to the action Tuesday. The case had previously been adjourned to Tuesday afternoon. It is being tried by Fred V. Heinemann, acting municipal judge. The Hantischs made an agreement with the defendant, who recently immigrated here from Holland, for the sale of the house on the installment plan. The payments would apply as rental in case the defendant did not decide to buy the house. No payments, however, have been made since the beginning of the lease.

BROWNING SLOW CLIMBER

Almost exactly the same thing is true of Tennyson and Browning. For many years Tennyson dominated the scene and Browning gave the impression that he would go down in literary history as one of the many, many unsuccessful poets. For a long time the contemporaries of the two poets would have regarded it as ridiculous to pair these two names; there were a number of other poets who seemed to have a better right to be associated with Tennyson than Browning. Today Browning is generally regarded as a greater figure than Tennyson but that is a retrospective view. In actual fact the two were not at all blood brothers in art as we think of them and they were little more than formal friends. The thesis does not hold quite so well for Hardy and Meredith, but well enough to make it possible to include their names in the century's classifications. The fact is that true artists cannot very well go in teams. In art the much talked of cooperation has no meaning. An artist, if he is the real thing, must go it alone and no amount of cooperation can produce a single line of great literature. Never so long as the world lasts can the laws of business be applied to art. In the field of great art there can never be any "a. co." sign.

MRS. BORDELIN'S
REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Gives Credit for Restored Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. All Women Interested

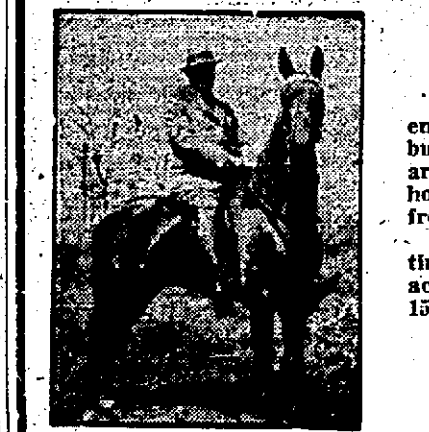

MRS. OSCAR F. BORDELIN

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine, but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when we had been in town a little while telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking, and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health, and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. OSCAR F. BORDELIN, Route No. 5, Forest City, Iowa.

A Bad Case of Nerves Relieved

Denver, Colorado.—"I was very dependent, blue and sad all the time, which is worse than real pain, and extremely nervous, with no appetite. I was this way for about two years and thought no one cared for me. My mother had had the same trouble and had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it. I tried everything else, but I began to take it. I soon had a better appetite and restored mental condition. I moved to a bright, sunny house, began calling on different people, and changed many other things. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for my female weakness. With the aid of your medicines I am now a fairly healthy, happy and contented woman. I've used the Vegetable Compound at different times and will say it always helps me over the bad spells that come to every woman past 40 years."—Mrs. HELEN FINE, 36 South Washington Street, Denver, Colorado.
